

YEAR OF READING

Week 33 - Exploring New Genres

New genres expand skills and interests.

At home: Try a book type your child hasn't chosen before.

Recommended read: Fortunately, the Milk by Neil Gaiman — quirky and imaginative story, perfect for exploring humor and fantasy.

Week 34 - Reflecting on Favourite Characters

Characters help children understand behaviour and choices.

At home: Ask who they connected with and why.

Recommended read: Charlotte's Web by E.B. White — strong character relationships and meaningful choices.

ONLINE SAFETY NEWSLETTER

Our online safety newsletter for July is now on the website in the usual place - Families/E-Safety advice. The focus this month is further information on the social media ban next year for under 16's and also lots of advice on Whatsapp and live streaming. There are also links to websites to support you with helping your children balance screen time over the summer holidays!

ONLINE SAFETY SESSION

Thank you to those parents and governors who attended the Online Safety Information session this week. The feedback we received was excellent and everyone felt the practical support from John Finch Computers on changing settings and controls was extremely useful. If you were unable to attend or would like information on this please click on the link below for a handy parental controls booklet produced by Knowlsey Council, who also create our monthly online safety newsletters:
